

Part 1927 Metropolitan Water Supply and Sewerage Plan DP 111

Rutland Street

Petrie Terrace Housing Photo Study

Brisbane History Group

bhg4000@brisbanehistorygroup.org.au

It took a while, and an opportunistic driveway conversation to fathom out why all the houses in the street have odd numbers. A stroll along Mountjoy quickly revealed there is no practical way for postal deliveries to be made to the street addresses of the houses that line the south side of Rutland Street

1883 Land Auction plan of Bishop's Hill, Petrie Terrace (SLQ)

Petrie Terrace west of Fiveways would subsequently be renamed Musgrave Road and the north-south Gov't Road, initially Cemetery Road, would be extended through Portion 315 and become Hale Street

'Bishop's Hill' was an appropriate name for this locale, James Quinn the RC Bishop of Brisbane purchased seven of the Portions fronting Petrie Terrace stretching from Regent Street to Hale Street. He missed out on Portion 311 which was purchased by Edward Wyndham Tufnell, C of E Bishop of Brisbane.

Part 1888 Drainage Plan D-9-98
(Brisbane City Archives)

c1982

August 2023

Rutland Street looking West

State of the Streets.

TO THE EDITOR,—SIR.—I wish to draw the attention of the powers that be to the state of Rutland street, Petrie terrace. Some time ago the street was cut down, and since then nothing has been done to put it in a proper state. The consequence is that in wet weather we have to pick our steps through mud and mire. Another thing I would like to mention is that owing to the street not being formed, dirty water from some of the houses is left to stagnate and pollute the atmosphere. As the hot weather will soon be here, this ought to be seen to at once. At a late meeting of the Municipal Council a remark was passed about the front streets being attended to before alleys. I may state that nearly all the people on the higher side of Mountjoy Place, use Rutland street (or alley) generally, owing to the cutting down of Mountjoy Place. The ratepayers in the alleys are taxed rather heavily, and I think that they ought to have something done for them. Hoping that something will be done to remedy these little matters.—Yours, &c.

FAIRPLAY.

August 25, 1887.

The Telegraph 25 Aug 1887

(National Library of Australia Trove digitised newspapers)

No earlier image (constructed 2013-2019?)

August 2023

No 7 Rutland Street

c1982

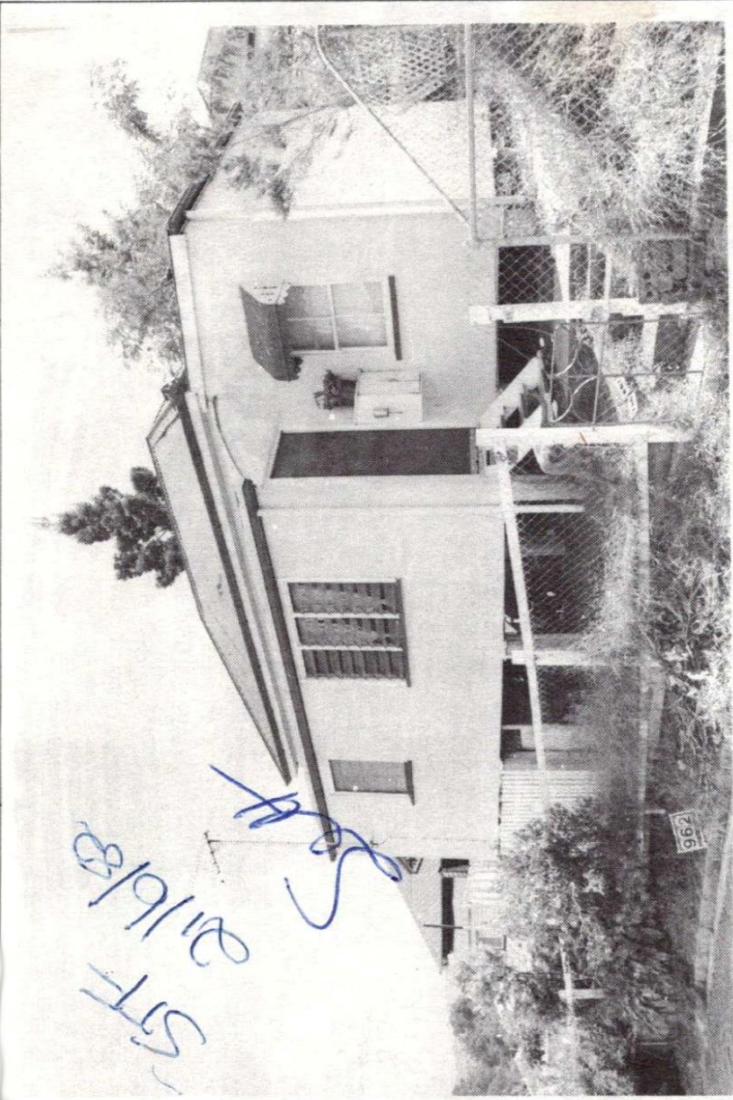

August 2023

No 23 Rutland Street

N.C.S.	St. James Street	MAPD2 79	STREET 23 RUTLAND STREET	SUBURB PETRIE TERRACE
VENDOR/S PHONE			TENANT Mr & Mrs Mulvey	LISTING No. 58962/1
BASE	Conc	O/S WALLS	Stucco
ROOF	Iron	INT. WALLS	VJ
AGE	75	PATIO
L & D	Combined	BDRMS.	2
OTHER RMS.	Enclosed verandah
KIT	With fireplace
BATH	Yes	SHR. REC.	SOB
STOVE	Elec	H.W.S.	Elec
LAUNDRY	Under	SEWD.	Yes
CAR ACCOM.	No*	HIGH/LOW SET
LAND APPROX.	165m ²	FRONT APPROX.	10m
FENCED	Yes	ZONING	Res A
RATES		ASSESS No.
V.G.		TRPT.	100m
R.P.D.	S.18 S.3 A.310 V.533 F.123
DEED HELD	CT.76393
INSPECT	Through Listing Agent or after 3pm
FRONT STEPS	2	REAR STEPS	5
UNDER HOUSE
ASPECT	South
L.A.	Arnhem Pty Ltd
SUB.	Paddington		A2
PHONE	36 0322
A.H.s. REP.	378 4758

STH 21/6/82

REMARKS: Magnificent views from the highest spot on Petrie Terrace. Tenanted at $70pw.
* Could be dug out from street level.

PRICE: $43,000

BASIS OF CONJUNCTION 50% OF NETT COMMISSION
MULTIPLE LISTING SERVICE OF QUEENSLAND. FORM 2.

[Courtesy Windsor & District Historical Society / Churchill Real Estate Archive]

Colonial rustic and compact

IF you're looking for a neat, rustic little cottage, there's plenty in Petrie Terrace.

This house in Rutland Street is on the high side of the narrow cul-de-sac, with views to Mount Coot-tha and the ranges.

Set on a tiny 165 sq. m of land behind a high picket fence, there is a pocket handkerchief-size private yard on two sides.

The 102-year-old colonial is fully renovated inside and out and has been re-painted and rewired recently. Built with wide chamfer board and stuccoed in tasteful cream outside, it perches neatly on concrete stumps.

It is very compact, almost doll's house-like inside. The kitchen has timber cupboards, cork-tile floor, an old fireplace with a pot-belly stove, and a leadlight window.

There is a deck off the kitchen, which has expansive southern and western views.

Through the kitchen is the lounge-room, which leads out to a paved section of the backyard.

There are two good size bedrooms and a small enclosed veranda, which could be used as an office or study. The house is carpeted throughout in a neutral color.

— SANDA KILLEN.

SUMMARY:

23 Rutland Street, Petrie Terrace.

102 years old.

Zoned DH1P for historical preservation.

Timber, stucco.

December 1987

c1982

August 2023

No 31 Rutland Street

Ghastly Home For Children

APPALLING CONDITIONS

AS nauseating for the prosecutor to tell, as it was for listeners to hear, were the details of ghastly conditions under which a man, his wife, and young family existed in a house in Rutland-street, Petrie-terrace, graphically told in Brisbane Police Court last week.

Ordinary slum life would be a palatial affair compared with the dreadful state of things discovered by police and a health inspector in the abode of John Burnham and family, according to Detective Sergt. Alan White, investigating C.I.B. man, who gave up trying to paint the picture and declared that the filth was beyond power of human description.

The shocking recital of what the officers found on their visit to the Burnham "home" was made by John Burnham, 34-year-old laborer, and his wife, Winifred Burnham, who appeared in court between July 14 and December 2, 1948, being persons having lawful custody of certain children, viz., David John (7), Daphne June (5), Mary Martha (4), Edward Margery (2), and Edward John (five months) they neglected them in a manner likely to cause the children unnecessary suffering or injury to their health.

BOTH khaki-trousered Burnham and his diminutive wife (who was nursing the baby) heard the shocking indictment outlined by the prosecutor (Sear-sergt. Gray) with apparent emotion. Each pleaded guilty.

CHILDREN TAKEN

Since the intervention of the authorities, it was disclosed, the house had been cleaned up, the State Children's Department had taken away the four youngsters, and the Burnhams, with their infant child, were now living under the house.

under the house. The prosecutor declared that, on entering the yard of the house on November 30 last, he was assaulted by a foul stench arising apparently from garbage and rotten food, strewn about.

At the top of the steps the investigators saw children's filthy clothing lying about. Mrs. Burnham came to the door, and allowed the police to inspect inside the premises.

SORES, FLIES

An adjoining room was in a similar state, and on the floor lay the four-year-old girl on some old bedding, a military overcoat. The child was covered with sores on the head, face, legs, and arms. The girl was being molested by flies, were no underclothing, and seemed in a daze and far from normal. The prosecutor.

The kitchen was even worse. Flies were everywhere, and the floor was so putrid that the filth would need shovelling to get rid of it. Other revolting things found were a grease-laden stove, and a rubbish tin nearly overflowing with garbage.

The baby was lying in a pram, covered with a soiled changed in the house now, and could not see how any good could be done by imposing a monetary penalty on Burnham.

"Apparently you have just been struggling," the S.M. said to Burnham. "This is not an invitation to you to go and spend your money on booze; it is a chance for you to give your wife more of your earnings, so that both of you can look after the house properly."

Burnham was ordered to enter into a bond of £25, to be of good behavior for six months.

John Burnham, father charged with neglect of children, was a centerpiece of a shocking court story. (See this page.)

The baby was lying in a pram, covered with a soiled napkin; it seemed undernourished, he added.

When the officers visited the house again on December 1, it was in the same state of filth except that the rubbish had been removed from the kitchen. Senior-sergt. Gray went on.

Mrs. Burnham, when asked why she could do better, said that it was the best she could do. She said her husband gave her £3 a week to keep the house on, and she also received 30/- a week, endowment for the children.

Burnham, continued Senior-sergt. Gray, was earning £6/3/6 with the City Council, and was addicted to booze. He appeared to be little or no interest in the family.

Burnham informed Mr. R. C. F. Byrne, S.M., that they and cleaned up a little better now. The S.M. convicted but did not punish Mrs. Burnham, who left the court. He remanded her husband for an hour, to consider the position, and then announced that he had rectified on conditions being changed in the house now, and could not see how any good

No earlier image

August 2023

Rutland Street looking East

AGENT AND OWNER FINED Decision On £200 Key Money Charge: Appeal

William Patrick Breen, licensed commission agent, of Petrie Terrace, was fined £50, and Violet Murphy, of Petrie Terrace, £75 for breaches of the Landlord and Tenant Act in the Summons Court today.

Breen was fined £25, with £5 2/5 costs, on a charge that as an agent he accepted £200 in consideration of an agreement for the transfer of the lease of a house in Rutland Street, Petrie Terrace, to Louisa Margaret Boshhammer. Imprisonment for six months, in default was ordered.

He was fined £25, with £5 2/5 costs, in default imprisonment for three months, for having as agent required the purchase of furniture in consideration of the agreement.

Murphy was fined £50 on the first charge and £25 on the second, in default imprisonment for three months with the same costs.

"Look At All Sides"

Mr. Byrne, S.M., said the case revolved between the word of the prosecution against that of the defendant. He would have to look at all sides—the interests that might be served.

What interest was it to the prosecution witnesses to come to the Court and perjure themselves for the sake of a conviction? What did it mean to Breen and Murphy?

He considered the evidence of Breen and Murphy not worthy of any credence.

Mr. L. G. Martin (Crown Law Office), who prosecuted, said the offence was a very grave one, especially since it was one so difficult to prove. For every one convicted so many got away, he said. He asked got away, he said. He asked the Magistrate to impose a penalty that would serve as a deterrent.

Mr. A. G. Hopgood (Hempnall and Hopgood) for the defence gave notice of appeal.

"Take This"

Breen claimed he advertised the Rutland Street house as a residential for sale at £275, on the basis of a "Security" agreement.

Boshhammer, whom he knew as Cassells, answered the advertisement.

When Boshhammer came to his office with Mrs. Murphy she was determined to get the house, said Breen.

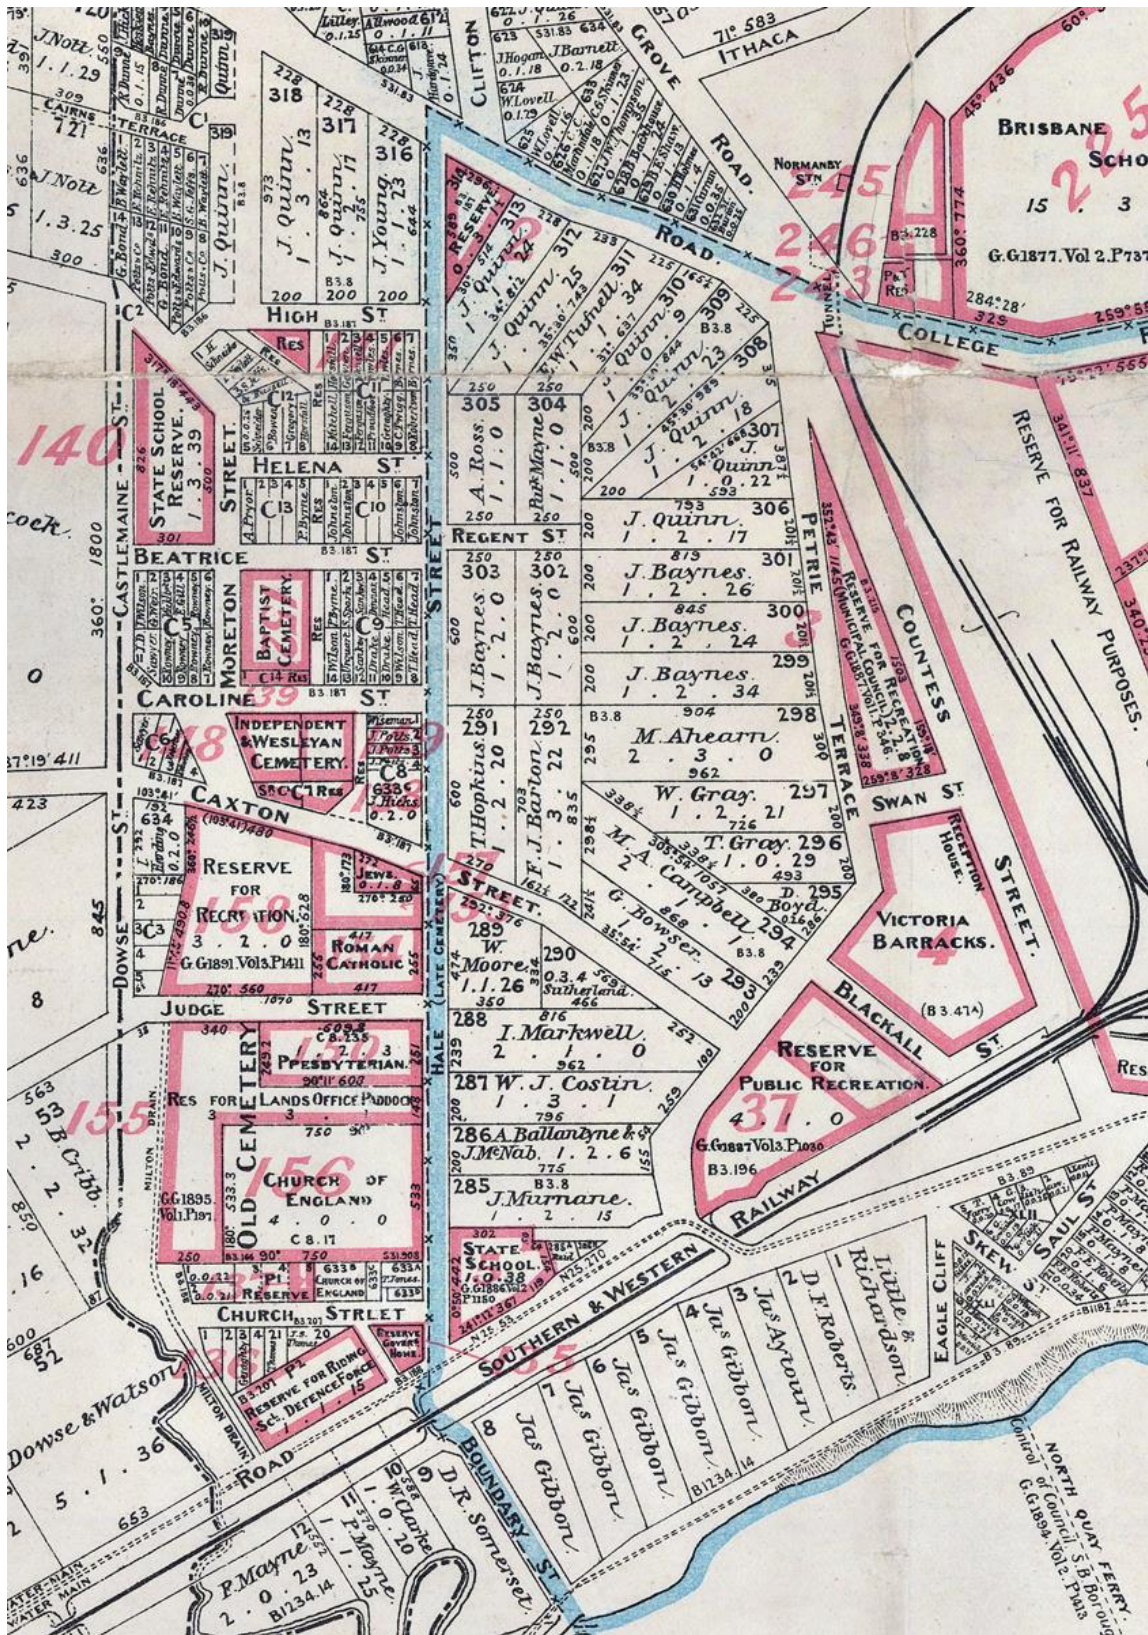

After she had paid for the furniture and got a receipt for £70 Boshhammer had jumped to her feet rushed to the door and said to Murphy, "Take this," he said.

Immediately a Mr. Potter from the Fair Rents Office and two detectives rushed in and the £200 was found in Murphy's shopping bag.

Murphy denied that Boshhammer paid her £200 or offered it to her. She rushed past, said something, and pushed the money in her bag, said Murphy.

Brisbane Telegraph 10 June 1949

(National Library of Australia Trove digitised newspapers)

July 1900 Plan of City of Brisbane & Suburbs according to the original land grants
(Surveyor General's Office – State Library of Queensland)

*1951 Part aerial photograph BCC 000539333
(Queensland Government -QImagery)*